The JSON file has both json and valid keys. The valid keys are not in a linked table. The missing keys are valid if they are in the current JSON file. I have tried the json2csv.py module. But that works on valid key I need to skip/ignore the key when it is missing from the JSON file. A: You can try this csv2json tool ( and specify the header as parameter, set the missing key as "null". I know that this tool does not delete null values but if you are ok with that then this might do what you want: import json import csv def my_writer(fout, headers): writer = csv.DictWriter(fout, fieldnames=headers) writer.writerow(['name', 'address']) for person in json.load(open("people.json")): name = person.get("name") if name == 'null': name = "" address = person.get("address") if address
